Cable trays for sockets typically range from $15 to $34 for consumer under-desk models, while industrial or bulk trays can cost between $0.80 and over $76 per unit depending on material and size.Consumer (B2C) Pricing

For home or office use, under-desk cable trays designed to hold multiple sockets and power bricks are priced between $15 and $34 per unit. These trays are usually made of powder-coated steel or plastic, feature easy installation methods like screw-on or clamp systems, and are suitable for managing small to medium cable bundles . Wholesale prices for these consumer trays can be as low as $0.92, offering potential for resale with moderate markup.

Industrial and Commercial (B2B) Pricing

For larger-scale applications such as data centers, construction projects, or manufacturing facilities, cable trays are available in stainless steel, galvanized steel, or aluminum, with prices ranging from $0.80 to over $76 per unit depending on size, load capacity, and material . Bulk purchasing through platforms like Alibaba or direct from manufacturers can significantly reduce per-unit costs. These trays comply with standards such as DIN EN 61537 and are designed for high load-bearing capacity, corrosion resistance, and long-term durability .

Factors Affecting Price
• Material: Stainless steel and heavy-duty metal trays are more expensive than plastic or powder-coated steel.

• Size and Capacity: Larger trays or those designed to hold multiple sockets and thick cables cost more.

• Design: Perforated, ladder-style, or modular trays with accessories for routing and securing cables can increase cost.

• Installation Type: Under-desk trays for personal use are cheaper than industrial ceiling or wall-mounted systems.
Summary

For typical socket management under desks, expect to pay $15–$34 per tray. For industrial or bulk applications, prices vary widely from $0.80 to over $76, depending on material, size, and compliance with safety standards . Choosing the right tray depends on your installation environment, load requirements, and budget.
