Price of installing a complete electrical distribution box

Overview

Los Angeles homeowners can upgrade or fix their home electrical system with a large-scale rewiring project.

Key Takeaways

The cost to install an electrical distribution box typically ranges from $450 to $6,500, depending on box type, amperage, labor, and installation complexity.Cost Breakdown

Residential Installations:

• Standard residential panel boxes usually cost $150 to $1,900 for parts and labor, with most projects falling between $450 and $1,500 depending on amperage, wiring gauge, and labor complexity .

• Larger upgrades, such as moving from a 100-amp to a 200-amp service or adding subpanels, can increase costs to $1,500–$6,500 .

• Labor is a significant factor, with electricians charging $40–$100 per hour, and call-out fees ranging from $75–$125 . Commercial or Industrial Installations:

• Commercial or industrial distribution boxes are more expensive due to higher capacity, durability, and advanced features. Costs can range from $2,500 to $12,000+, especially for custom enclosures or outdoor/weatherproof units .

• Factors such as amperage rating, number of circuits, material quality, and compliance with electrical codes influence the final price . Additional Cost Considerations:

• Permits and inspections may add to the total cost, particularly in urban areas .

• Outdoor-rated or weather-resistant boxes carry a premium compared to indoor units .

• Complex wiring or relocation of meters can increase labor costs significantly .

• Energy-efficient or smart panels with monitoring capabilities may have higher upfront costs but can reduce long-term operational expenses . Summary: For a typical residential installation, expect $450–$1,500 for a standard panel, while larger upgrades or commercial installations can reach $6,500 or more. Labor, permits, amperage, and installation complexity are the main drivers of cost, and professional installation ensures compliance with safety codes and reliable operation .
