CRX Taiwan specializes in outdoor fiber optic cables that meet rigorous international standards (IEC 60794), including tensile strength, crush, impact, bending, water penetration, and temperature cycling tests. Their products support aerial, duct, directly buried, and self-supporting installations, with armored, rodent-resistant, and water-blocking options. CRX offers cables ranging from 1 to 288 fibers, with PE, aluminum, steel tape, or steel wire protection, suitable for harsh outdoor and high-humidity environments . FiTek provides a wide range of fiber optic solutions, including anti-rodent outdoor cables, military-grade motorized optical cables, and FTTH deployment solutions. They emphasize innovation, patent-certified products, and comprehensive technical support, making them a reliable choice for both commercial and specialized applications . Tai Tung Communication Co., Ltd. manufactures outdoor loose tube cables, slotted core cables, and other PON products. They also offer patch cords, pigtails, and optical splitters, supporting customized solutions for FTTH and other outdoor network deployments . DINTEK offers aerial armored fiber and other outdoor fiber optic cables designed for high-performance networking. Their Light-LINKS™ series provides reliable connectivity for both commercial and residential applications, emphasizing durability and speed .

Key Considerations for Choosing Outdoor Fiber Optic Cables
• Environmental Resistance: Look for rodent-proof, water-blocking, and armored cables for harsh outdoor conditions.

• Installation Type: Ensure compatibility with aerial, duct, or direct burial deployment.

• Fiber Count and Type: Choose simplex, duplex, or multi-fiber cables based on network requirements.

• Standards Compliance: Verify adherence to IEC 60794 and other relevant international standards.

• Technical Support: Companies offering installation guidance, custom solutions, and after-sales support can reduce deployment challenges.
Recommendation

For high-performance outdoor fiber optic cables in Taiwan, CRX Taiwan is highly recommended for its extensive product range, compliance with international standards, and robust outdoor durability. FiTek is also a strong choice for specialized applications requiring innovation and custom solutions. Tai Tung and DINTEK provide reliable alternatives for FTTH and high-performance networking deployments.
